

Miss Lou to perform at Seneca college

<sup>B/N</sup>
Louise Bennett — the world-famous Jamaican folklorist — will be giving Torontonians a taste of the entertainment that has made her a legend in her native Jamaica and abroad.

With a smile and a twinkle in her eye Miss Lou said how well the performance at Seneca College on Sunday turns out will depend on how well she feels.

But it can always be taken for granted that Miss Lou will be in the right mood when she takes to the stage in Minkler Auditorium. (The concert which also features the Heritage Singers starts at 4:30 p.m.)

Miss Lou, although her success has taken her to Britain, the United States, the Caribbean and Latin America said she would not trade anything for the stage or for Jamaicans and Jamaica.

Apart from the stage if I were to live my life all over again I would probably be a camera woman, but that would have to be on the side," she said.

Miss Lou said she will be drawing from some of her well-known works and some new material. "Just let's wait and see what happens," she said.

The Jamaican folklorist said her success is growing abroad. "I can't write enough," she said. "I don't have the time to do sufficient."

Miss Lou said two new books will be published shortly.

"I would like to return to Jamaica and just write. If I were to compile the things I have written alone..." she said, indicating there would be enough to keep her busy for a long time.

And her success is growing. She has been invited to visit London for a performance but probably will not be able to keep the date until after spring.

Already her work has taken her on lecture tours of American universities.

While in Toronto Miss Lou said she will be visiting at least one school for a performance.
