

Oliver Senior was born and grew up in rural Jamaica. She was educated in Jamaica and Canada. She has studied journalism in the U.K. as a Thomson Scholar and holds a Bachelor of journalism degree from Carleton University, Ottawa, Canada.

She has spent her entire working life in the Communications field - as journalist, public relations consultant, researcher, writer, author, editor and more recently, in publishing.

Her career in journalism started with the Gleaner, continued with the Jamaica Information Service, and later with the Jamaica Chamber of Commerce. She is currently editor of Jamaica Journal and head of the Institute of Jamaica Publications Ltd.

She has won several awards for her poetry and short stories including the Institute of Jamaica Centenary medal for creative writing. She has had poems and short stories published in Jamaica Journal, Savacou, and the Caribbean Poem. She has completed a book-length study entitled "West Indian Builders of the Panama Canal" and has recently placed on the market "A-Z of Jamaican heritage". This book is described as "interesting, comprehensive" and meets a crying demand for easily accessible and digestible material on varied aspects of local culture!"
